

ways to redefine how, when and where work gets done

The future of work is flexible. Whether your workforce is remote, on-site or a combination of both, flexible work arrangements help attract and retain talent while ensuring job equity and accessibility.

1 work from anywhere

Telework leverages technology to allow employees to work outside the office. It can include working from home, a different office or in a co-working space closer to home.

2 flex the work schedule

This allows employees to customize the days they come in as well as the times they start and end work either daily or weekly, at the discretion of the employer.

3 compress the workweek

A compressed schedule provides employees with larger blocks of time off without losing productivity.

Why FlexWork?

Here are 5 good reasons to consider flexible work arrangements.

75% of traditional offices implemented /working on a remote work policy*

1: Attract talent by offering great benefits

Nearly two-thirds of employees value work-life balance over pay and feel like remote/hybrid jobs improve that balance

2: Save money

Companies save up to $11K for every employee working 2-3 days remotely per week in reduced rent, increased productivity, fewer days off work and lower turnover

3: Improve productivity

Increases productivity – Remote employees work 1.4 more days a month than in-office employees

4: Curb turnover

Reduces quitting rates by a third

5: Support employee well-being

Reduces commute-related stress by 63%
